

ECHOES OF FORTUNE

The Knights of the Golden Circle

a historical conspiracy thriller

BOOK THREE · DAVID R LENG

A Civil War cipher leads historian Jack Sullivan into a conspiracy Jefferson Davis died protecting: a documented secret society that adapted instead of disappearing, a vanished Confederate treasury, and a threat to the republic 150 years in the making.

“One part Jack Reacher, one part Indiana Jones... an impressively entertaining action thriller.”

— Kirkus Reviews, “GET IT”

“Leng lets the past press against the present, sometimes like a warning and sometimes like a buried fuse.”

— Literary Titan ★★★★★

“A swaggering epic of conspiracies, treasure hunting, historical mysteries, and race-against-the-clock suspense.”

— BookLife by Publishers Weekly

THE SERIES

Historical conspiracy thrillers built on real American history, where the buried parts of the past are buried for a reason.

- The Search for Braddock’s Lost Gold — Winner, 2025 PenCraft Thriller of the Year. Braddock’s vanished 1755 payroll, and a young George Washington on the Monongahela.
- Shadows Over Cozumel — A Confederate ghost ship and a sealed brass tube of secrets. Kirkus “GET IT” Pick and a BookLife by Publishers Weekly Editor’s Pick.
- The Knights of the Golden Circle — The real secret society and the missing Confederate treasury.

AT ITS CENTER

“Power centralizes during emergencies. But it never decentralizes when the emergency ends.”

Kirkus called it “an enjoyably tense thriller that grapples with the notion that many people are willing to surrender freedom for security,” anchored in an understanding that civic freedoms are hard won but easily lost.
